I hope you all had a fun spring break. It's great to be back at school and to see all those smiling faces again. The last five weeks of school will be busy. We will be planting seeds and learning about the parts of plants. We will be incubating quail eggs and watching them hatch in May.

On Wednesday we will have a special mindfulness lesson with Janice Thorup about connecting to nature.

On Thursday we will watch our second grade buddies perform their play about western expansion.

On Friday we will make our last visit to Paonia Care Center to sing to the residents.

We are looking forward to having our published books arrive and having a publishing party.

I'll let you know about other special things happening in May as the time gets closer. Happy Spring!
